City Council: split opinion favors crushing plant

■ Several residents have contacted the city over concerns that 15th St. facility is too close to Jefferson Blvd. homes

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

With a split vote Wednesday, the city council overturned a planning commission decision and a staff recommendation and indicated its approval for a concrete and asphalt recycling plant on South River Road. The plant, proposed by landowners Anthony and Kellie Alegre, will be several hundred yards from homes in the Jefferson Blvd. and 15th St. area.

"The benefits of this plant are going to outweigh the impacts," Anthony Alegre told the News-Ledger Tuesday. "We're going to make it more economically feasible for the development projects here."

Alegre explained that the plant will accept concrete and asphalt torn up from old roads and land uses in West Sacramento, and crush it to turn it into new "Caltrans Class II" asphalt and material.

"Asphalt and concrete is demolished and torn out of the streets, and the city will benefit from this plant. They rip the material out, and it is hauled by truck to the recycling yard."

Having the recycling yard in West Sacramento will help hold costs down for those doing the developing, he said, making the projects more attractive.

Allegre added that most of the truck traffic for the plant would be kept on South River Road, and that buildings at the site would help screen the plant's materials and operations from sight.

"We did a noise impact study," he added. "The freeway is going to be a lot louder than anything we'll be doing. The freeway will muffle the noise of the plant."

The plant is intended to take up five acres of a site at the northwest corner of 15th St. and South River Road – and that is too close to nearby neighborhoods, say several residents.

"I certainly don't want to hear the continual crunching of the jaws and rollers of the crusher," said Mickey Fausett, a 13th St. resident who reports that he used to work at a rock quarry and now lives about 300 yards from the proposed recycling plant.

"What assurances do we have that our houses will not be inundated with a fine white powder?," he asked. "Fortunately, the wind blows the other way in the spring and summer, but in the fall and winter, it will come right down 13th St."

The issue split the vote of the council, with support for a conditional use permit coming from members Bill Kristoff, Mark Montemayor and Jim Cahill. Mayor Christopher Cabaldon and Councilman Greg Potnick voted 'no.'

Potnick said he supported the staff report which recommended against the plant, and believed that the permit would not be in keeping with the city general plan, which calls for the area to be transitioned to a more urban and intensive development as part of the long-range downtown area. The site is several hundred yards south of the planned new waterfront stadium.

"This is a use we no longer want to have in the 'triangle' area," said Potnick. "I truly believe this plant will have some visual impacts, especially for those going north on Jefferson Blvd., when you won't be able to miss all those huge piles, and it's probably less than 100 yards away from the first residences. This site will impact residences."

Business owner Allegre said that the city set a precedent for his plant by earlier approving another crushing facility on South River Road closer to the river.

"They already allowed a recycling yard across the street," he told the News-Ledger. If we're not consistent, they're not consistent."

Potnick argued that the two projects were not comparable and there was no precedent.

"The two sites are totally different in character and location," he said yesterday. "You can't say that because one is 400 yards away, that this is the right site for a second one. The other plant is farther away, screened by a hill and tucked under the freeway. Most people don't know it's there."

Council member Montemayor, who voted for the plant, explained his reasons yesterday.

"I'm not excited about it," he said. "We would have preferred something nicer there rather than something that looks this industrial. But if they fail to comply with not only the mitigations required by us, but by other agencies, we can revoke their permit. It's only a five year permit."

Montemayor also said the planned recycling plant was not a banned use for the area.

"As far as the general plan goes, it's wide open to interpretation," he said. "I didn't hear anything from staff saying this is a prohibited use. It may not fit in with the intent of the plan, but I didn't hear anything about it being prohibited."

The city council directed its staff to come up with a new set of "findings" in support of the plant's permit, and the matter will return for city council discussion on May 12.

Steve Rikala, a senior planner for the city, reports that a company called GTM Sports has also approached the city regarding the site, and hopes to build a "sports training facility" at the property related to indoor soccer and basketball.

"The sports people are a potential buyer for the property if the Allegre deal doesn't go through," he said.

But can she spell 'proclamation'?

Burglars enter two local businesses through the roof

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

Two men have been arrested and charged with the burglary of a Merkley Ave. liquor store, but the pair has not yet been charged in connection with a similar burglary this weekend at a local nail and hair salon.

West Sacramento Police Lieutenant David Farmer reports that officers noted the alarm at Lo Cost Liquor on Merkley Ave. went off at about 4:30 a.m. on Saturday. There was no visible sign of forced entry at the time, but the business's owner was notified. Later that morning, the burglary was discovered.

"The suspects entered from the roof," said Farmer. "They took cash from the register, and rolled coins and booze."

Sunday morning, police took a report for a similar roof-entry burglary the night before at West Capitol Nails & Hair. Money from the register was taken.

But a suspect caught the eye of an officer at about 4:15 a.m., when the officer noticed the man acting suspiciously in front of a 900-block West Capitol Ave. motel.

"The individual moved away from the officer rather quickly, and he was stopped," said Farmer. "He was on parole, so he was searched, and liquor and a room key were found."

Officers searched the room at the motel.

"Inside was another subject with rolled coins that had Lo Cost's name on them. They also had hypodermic syringes and a small amount of a controlled substance. They were charged with possession of stolen property and drug charges. No evidence was immediately found linking the pair to the second burglary.

Suspect Elias Morales, 25, was arrested after the contact outside the motel. He at first gave police a false name, said Farmer. Suspect Cordell Fry, 35, was arrested after being found in the motel room with the stolen property.

WUSD meeting date

Board member Ed Hocking of the Washington Unified School District reports that at next Tuesday's meeting, the school board will consider moving its meetings from Tuesdays to Thursdays. The board, which generally meets twice a month, moved its meetings to Tuesdays several years ago.

One effect of moving the meeting dates back will be to allow a weekly local newspaper like this one to be able to publicize the board's agenda in advance. The agenda for next Tuesday's meeting, for example, won't be released until this Friday, so that by the time the News-Ledger publishes again next week, whatever matters were on the agenda for the school board will already have been dealt with.

In other school board news, the trustees at their special meeting last week unanimously adopted a resolution endorsing the annual "National TV-Turnoff Week," encouraging people to forego television for the week of April 22-28. The event is coordinated by TV-Free America, a non-profit group which believes that Americans should reduce their intake of television programs "in order to lead healthier, more satisfying lives," according to State Schools Superintendent Delaine Eastin.

The board meets at 5:30 p.m. in the city council chambers, 2101 Stone Blvd.

Maybe it's best to avoid regular medical checkups?

Editor's note: Daryl is in Los Angeles this week. The following column appeared in the News-Ledger in the summer of 1992.

My Back Pages

By Daryl Fisher

I recently decided to do something I haven't done in ages. I went and got myself a complete medical checkup.

Since I didn't have a doctor of my own, a friend of mine recommended that I go to his and he cheerfully added, "This guy will give you every blood test imaginable. And when he's done with you, not only will you know if there's something wrong, but you'll also be as white as Dracula."

I reluctantly went ahead and called for an appointment, got one, but was told by a nurse that I would have to do all the blood work before the doctor would even see me. She said she would make all the necessary arrangements, which she did, and about a week or so after approximately 90 percent of my blood had been systematically drained from my body, I got in my truck and bravely headed out to get the results.

I arrived for my 9:00 a.m. appointment exactly on time, having long suffered from an almost pathological need to be punctual. In fact, if I'm more than two or three minutes late for any scheduled commitment, you can more or less assume I've been run over by a train and killed.

Anyway, about an hour or so after I first took a seat in the doctor's crowded waiting room, a very friendly nurse with a sweet smile announced with great fanfare, "We're ready for you now, Mr. Fisher."

I put down the third or fourth magazine I had read from cover to cover, stood up, stretched the cramps out of my legs, and followed the nurse back to a distant examination room. She smiled again, pointed out a chair, and closed the door behind us.

"Now, what's the problem today?" she asked with apparent interest.

"Today's problem," I said, knowing I would regret the words before they were even out of my mouth, "is that it's almost 10:15, and my appointment was for nine."

The nurse's friendly smile quickly disappeared and she said matter-of-factly, "Strip down to your shorts. The doctor will be right with you." No smile, no wave goodbye, nothing.

I have never spent 45 minutes (in just my underwear) in a better air conditioned room in my entire life, and parts of me that are usually nice and pink were beginning to turn noticeably blue when the doctor mercifully knocked on my little door and stepped into the examination room. He held out a very warm hand for me to shake.

"So, Mr. Fisher," he finally said after he had finished thumbing through some papers in what appeared to be my new file, "when was the last time you had a complete physical?"

"Oh," I estimated, "about seven or eight years ago, I guess."

He looked at me very disapprovingly, sat down in the room's other chair, and took out his copy of all the blood tests I had taken for him earlier in the week. He then began to bite his lower lip and slowly shake his head from side to side. Since only Woody Allen gets more nervous in a doctor's examination room than I do, I finally blurted out, "What's the matter, Doc?"

"I don't like the look of this elevated triglyceride count," he said with deep conviction.

"What's that mean?" I quickly asked, sure that an elevated triglyceride count was probably the first warning sign of some form of new and deadly inoperable cancer.

"Well, it probably means you've been eating too much ice cream," he said as he stood up and pointed for me to climb up onto the examining table.

Since I didn't personally know of anyone who had ever died from eating too much ice cream, I let out a deep sigh of relief and told myself to relax.

"How old are you, Mr. Fisher?"

"I'll be 45 in a few weeks."

"Well," he said as he turned away from me and began fumbling through a cabinet drawer, "the first thing we have to do with a man your age is start making sure your prostate is in good shape."

So much for my state of relaxation as he suddenly approached me with a plastic glove on one hand and a tube of some kind of ointment in the other.

"And another thing about turning 45," he continued, "is that the male body really starts changing at approximately that age, and almost overnight, too. Some men your age actually report they feel as if their whole body is beginning to fall apart -- eyes, bones, muscle strength, coordination, you name it."

With those encouraging words still drifting around in my head, he very politely asked me to stand up and bend over, and as I did so, I suddenly found myself thinking back to an old quote Bette Davis had embroidered on one of her couch pillows: "Gettin' Old Ain't For Sissies!"

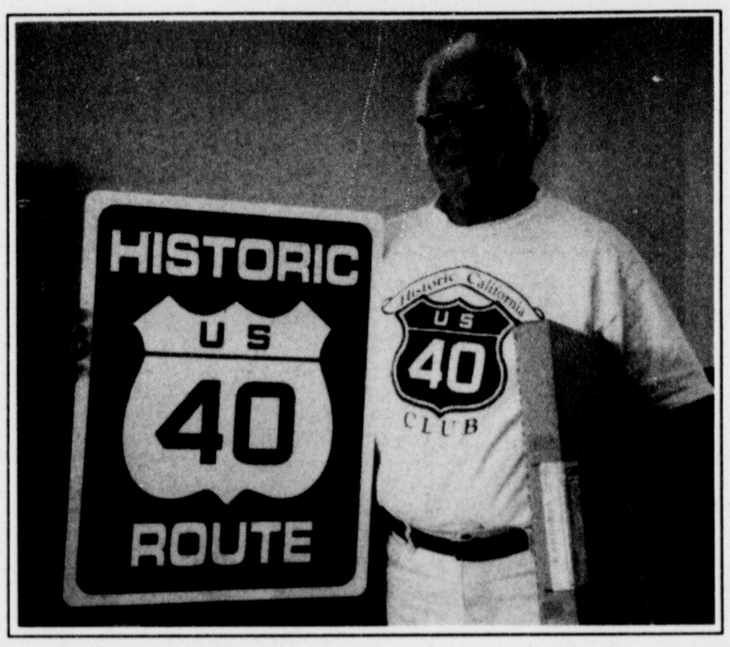

History Society listens to presentation on US 40

From Louisa R. Vessell
West Sacramento Historical Society

On April 6, Jeri Hughes Wingfield, the West Sacramento Historical Society's vice-president was installed on the City of West Sacramento Parks and Community Services Commission. City councilman Greg Potnick appointed Jeri to the position.

In March, Eddie Lang of the Registered Historic California US 40 Club, headquartered in Auburn, spoke before the society on a "Discussion on the Historic US 40 Route" – the Old Highway 40 which the California legislature declared by Resolution No. 180. Lang discussed the status of bringing recognition to Highway 40 which also includes parts of the Lincoln Highway that went from New York to San Francisco and through West Sacramento. Lang's group ultimately wants to work with local cities and communities to place black and white markers identifying Highway 40 in their communities. His club is the host club to work with CalTrans and the State of California to get this effort organized. Attending the meeting was city councilman Mark Montemayor who is very interested in establishing both Highway 40 and Lincoln Highway signs along West Capitol Ave.

The society was very saddened by the sudden passing of their founding mother, Virginia S. Seamans, this past February 19. She and Bryan Turner, the society's founding father, had the vision to create the society to preserve the past for future generations. She attended and participated in all of the society's meetings often asking excellent questions or offering comments about the discussion at hand. She was their most ardent supporter and promoter for the society often bringing new visitors to their meetings. Everyone will miss her immensely. She had great faith in the society and its mission: " To gather, preserve, display and interpret artifacts, and other historical documents. To encourage the general public in becoming interested in participating in the gathering, preservation and displaying of items and matters of historical significance "

On March 3, the West Sacramento City Council adjourned their meeting in Virginia's honor and on Sunday, March 7, the West Sacramento Community Orchestra played "Londonderry Air" in Virginia's memory. Mrs. Seamans was very active in the city and a great supporter of the arts.

There is still time for individuals to have their family photographs become part of the society's permanent collection or for potential use in one of their exhibitions. Members of the society are still working on the photograph exhibition showcasing the diversity of families in West Sacramento. If you have photographs that you would like to share, please call Jeri Hughes-Wingfield at 371-7678. She will make copies of your valued photos while you watch and you can take them immediately home with you, or she will come to your home to duplicate the photographs.

Thom Lewis, the society's curator and exhibition technician, has constructed display panels for the upcoming exhibition on the city's cultural diversity. Now all the society needs are photographs to go on the panels.

The West Sacramento Historical Society is a 501(C)3 non-profit organization. All donations to the society are tax-deductible. To donate an item(s), contact either Jeri Wingfield at 371-7678 or Louisa at 372-3453.

RC tennis deals with Mesa Verde

From River City High School

It had been nearly a decade since River City High School and Mesa Verde High School had played against each other in tennis. The Raiders are currently the three-time defending champions of the Golden Empire League while the Mavericks, who saw their team disbanded back in 1990, are presently undergoing a rather painful rebirth. When the two teams squared off in Citrus Heights last week, the outcome was rather predictable as the champions blasted their inexperienced hosts 9 to 0.

River City dropped only twelve total games in the nine matches as boys singles players Aaron Potnick and Khampheng Insixiengmay each recorded 6-0, 6-0 "double bagel" victories to lead the Raiders. The girls singles players, Khonesavanh Lattasima and Loan Nguyen nearly matched them with a pair of 6-0, 6-1 wins.

A couple of shutouts were also earned in doubles where Sisavat Phouanglasy and Casey Insixiengmay (#1 boys doubles) and Ka Yang and Andy Amphonephong (mixed doubles) registered 10-0 victories. The day's only close match came at #2 boys doubles where R.C.'s Huy Truong teamed with Erik Rogriguez, a freshman making his varsity debut, for a 10-7 win. The girls doubles were won easily by the Raider duos of Sue Yang and Sokpin Phoung (10-2 at #1) and Erin Cheechov and Keonakone Lattasima (10-1 at #2).

With the trouncing of the Mavericks, the Raiders improved to 6 wins without a defeat at the midway point of the G.E.L. schedule. They are 14 and 1 overall on the season. (Last week's much anticipated match against highly regarded St. Helena was canceled due to transportation problems encountered by the Saints.)

The second half of the league season begins this week with matches on the road at Marysville and Lindhurst. In addition, the top four boys and the top four girls on the team will be playing this weekend at the Quincy Invitational against some of the top competition from the North Section. The Raiders next home match will be on Tuesday, April 27 against Lincoln at 3:30 p.m.

Sports Insider

By Richard Novoa

The Sacramento Kings (19-22) finally pushed themselves into the eighth and final playoff spot on Monday night with their 102-98 victory over the Los Angeles Clippers.

The Kings are now tied with Seattle (19-22), who lost on Monday night to Houston, for the eighth spot. The Minnesota Timberwolves (22-20) are in sixth place, while the Phoenix Suns (21-20), remain in seventh place in the Western Conference, two games ahead of Sacramento and Seattle. The Warriors (18-22), who invade the Arco on Wednesday night, are only a half-game behind the Kings and Sonics! The race is on for the playoffs!

The Kings control their own destiny with nine games remaining in the NBA season. The Kings will be at home for seven of those games and with a little luck they could move up to the seventh spot and avoid the Jazz in the best of five playoffs. The Kings have a huge game on Friday night when they host Minnesota. The Timberwolves have beaten the Kings three times this season but look for the Kings to out score the injury depleted Wolves line-up. The Kings will then tangle with the Dallas Mavs on Saturday night. Let's hope the Kings play every game like its their last because after a day off the Kings travel to Oakland to play the Warriors on Monday night. At this point in the season, every game is a playoff game! The Kings will finish the season playing against the Spurs, Clippers, Suns, at home, then travel to Denver play the Nuggets. The big game will be on Sunday, May 2 against the Phoenix Suns. Rumors have NBC television switching their game schedule to include Sacramento in their national coverage of the playoff race.

I predict the playoffs will be decided on the Cinco de Mayo, when the Kings host the Vancouver Grizzlies. Kings win!!!

Don't wait, this game will not be on TV, get your tickets now! Tickets are available for all of the Kings remaining home games. Call any Ticketmaster outlet (649-TIXS) or visit the Arco Arena box office and save on the service charge.

Just when the Giants (9-5) were off and running and leading the Western Division, the injury bug hit. First they lose starting pitcher Mark Gardner, with a sore shoulder, now All-Star Barry Bonds will have surgery on his left elbow. Both players will be put on the 15-day disabled list but will probably be out 3 to 4 weeks! Lucky the Giants didn't trade Stan Javier, who will fill in Bonds in left field. The Giants also called up rookie sensation Joe Nathan from Double A Shreveport, who will probably get his first major league start this week against Florida. Speaking of the injury bug, the Major's have been hit hard this spring. Even Cal Ripen Jr., the iron man of baseball, is on the disabled list!

The Oakland A's (6-7) are ripping the cover off the baseball and getting some pretty good pitching too. The A's first baseman Jason Giambi is on fire and will probably be named the AL's player of the week. The A's will be on the road this week traveling to Cleveland and Baltimore, while the Giants host the Florida Marlins during the week and then begin a four game series at 3 Com Park against Colorado Rockies starting on Thursday.

The NFL draft had one big surprise this weekend. The top three picks came off as predicted but what happen to the Indianapolis Colts? Can you believe they passed on Ricky Williams!! Williams broke every major college rushing record over the past four years! The Colts also open the door for Williams when they traded their all-pro running back , Mashall Faulk, to the Rams for draft picks. Then on national TV the Colts stunned the world when they used their 4th pick overall in the draft to select running back Edgerrin James from Miami. They said he had better hands than Williams to catch the ball out of the back field! Well, let's see who has better hands when the Colts are playing in the cold weather against Buffalo, New York and New England!!

The NFL draft war rooms went crazy with phone calls but in the end it was New Orleans coach Mike Ditka, who pulled off the deal of the day by trading all seven of his 1999 draft picks and included next year's first pick to Washington for the rights to draft running back Ricky Williams. The Saints will be marching in next season!

See ya next week!!

55 Alive Driving Class

Many people consider their car a symbol of independence, and are reluctant to give up the privilege of driving. However, with diminishing hearing, eyesight and reflexes, there comes a time to accept the fact that driving must be discontinued. Two questions arise: (1) How does one know when to quit? (2) How does one adapt to changing physical abilities in order to delay decision? AARP offers the 55 Alive Mature Driving Course so that older drivers can learn to compensate for age-related changes that affect their driving, and to accept reality when driving is no longer viable. Studies have shown that people who have completed the course are about 16 percent less likely to be involved in an injury-related accident. In addition, many insurance companies offer lower premiums for those who have taken the course. Space is limited, so sign up now. The eight-hour class will be held May 25 and June 1 between 9 a.m. and 1 p.m. at the center.

OPINION

News-Ledger Editorial:

Who are you working for, Mr. Latini?

A Sacramento attorney has sued to block construction of a Triple-A ballpark in West Sacramento, and you don't have to be a particular cynic to suspect his motives.

There are really only three choices:

■ The lawsuit is genuine. The issue is the concern by attorney John M. Latini's clients that the ballpark is circumventing environmental laws, and in doing so, poses a threat to Sacramento County residents.

■ The lawsuit is a smoke screen for other agendas. It is intended only to delay or stop the West Sacramento ballpark. Blocking it would give competing interests in Sacramento (baseball promoters or politicians interested in seeing baseball only on the east side of the river) a chance to catch up and pass River City Baseball in its efforts to build a Sacramento-area stadium.

■ The lawsuit is just a bit of plucky private enterprise. The lawyer and/or his unnamed clients see some deep pockets who, if bothered enough, might pay them to drop the opposition and go away.

The intriguing part of this is that no has found out who Latini's clients are in this action against West Sacramento and River City Baseball. An attempt to use West Sacramento residents in his client group failed, and the lawsuit filed April 9 does not name who hired Latini to represent their alleged concerns. In addition, Latini (speaking to the West Sacramento City Council) has been evasive about naming his clients; the client list was first hard to get, then it shifted twice, and now has become invisible.

There is a famous old adage that to figure out a complicated situation, all you have to do is "follow the money." In this case, knowing the people who hired Latini would certainly be educational. To know who is behind him, and who is paying him, would answer the question of the lawsuit's motives. But an interview with the regional newspaper shed little light on the subject, and the News-Ledger has had no luck getting Latini to return a reporter's calls at all.

So the questions remain:

Who are all of your clients, Mr. Latini? Have you any ties to politicians or business people who have agendas that compete with Raley's Field? Why should anyone take you at face value if you are not forthcoming with answers to these questions?

Letters to the Editor

Not a freeloader

My name has appeared in the last two issues of the News-Ledger. The way I interpret the articles is that I am a free loader. The articles say I don't want to pay the City of West Sacramento my fair share of the $6,380.00 Traffic Study. The City changed the zoning from commercial to residential in 1996. Now the proposal is to restore the zoning to commercial. I don't want anything different than what I had originally. This should be at the City's expense. Councilman Greg Potnick was quoted in the News-Ledger saying this would set a bad precedent for the City. I would like to let the people of West Sacramento know that giving me back the commercial zoning I had when I bought the property is not setting a bad precedent, only rectifying bad judgment. The City changed the rules, they breached the Mello Roos contract.

Councilman Greg Potnick also told the News-Ledger about his concern for the people on Jefferson Blvd. and how this little corner of commercial property will cause Jefferson Blvd. to be six lanes. This is a lie. The truth is Councilman Greg Potnick has a personal vendetta against me. I'm not in love with him either but, when a man assumes an elected job like the City Council he should not create an injustice for anyone in the City.

Councilman Bill Kristoff told me at the time of the General Plan in 1996 that my triangle piece of property should stay commercial because, when built, it would generate more tax dollars for the City. He has proved to me that his word is his bond. I recommend that if you have a problem take it to him. I promise you he will not flush you down the toilet.

Rock plant a mistake

No matter where you live and work in West Sacramento, you will be affected by the decisions of the City Council (on a split vote) last Wednesday, April 14, to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to deny a permit to operate an asphalt/concrete recycling plant (a.k.a. gravel plant). From the rhetoric of the Council members and the entrepreneurs, it was clear that they shared, in some degree, the old image that we are a depressed, blighted community and this noisy, potentially polluting plant, with "heavy" traffic on Jefferson, could not "hurt."

Tonight will be one opportunity for you to let all the Council members know that the opportunity of an entrepreneur to make a profit should not have a higher priority than our adopted General Plan and the values you support. (It is not an Agenda item – as it will be May 12 – but it is "wake-up" time for our future, and your voice will count.)

WASHINGTON NEWS ITEMS

The Sacto River registered twelve feet one inch U. S. gauge at the S. P. bridge yesterday.

Rev. Samuel Klein, D. D., of New York, with a brother minister of the Evangelical Church have been visitors at the West Side Auto Camp during the past few days and expect to stay for several days to come. They are quietly investigating the condition of affairs around the state particularly relating to the prohibition question but they are mostly enjoying the California climate during the spring season. They make no bones about their purposes and are taking an extended vacation because they believe in seeing America first, although many Californians are now on their way to Europe or intend going there in the near future. There is no concealment about their persons nor are they using any disguise of any kind. Wearied with overwork in the field of Christ endeavor, they are simply going along observing what may be seen and inquiring into the habits, manners and customs of the people. Rev. Klein has had a distinguished career and gets down on the level with the average citizen of the United States in the desire to find out what the people of the United States think and what their desires are.

Sheriff J. W. Monroe was a visitor in Washington yesterday on official matters connected with his office. Greatly pleased with the condition of moral affairs around the community in Washington, Sheriff Monroe expressed himself greatly pleased that he had succeeded in quelling noxious trouble that made this section of Yolo County the butt of several Woodland papers who seem to hold a grudge against it.

Regular service will be established at the new service station lately built by McNally and Partridge near the entrance to the new subway leading to the M Street road. This service station has cost the owners considerable, the total being at least $3,000, while labor was put in on it by the proprietors that was not counted in the cost of construction.

J. J. Schulke and J. A. Newman, who lately purchased the lease and stock of the West Sacramento Auto Exchange from J. N. Carroll report that business is of the best kind and a continued stream of patrons are taking advantage of the low prices they quote on used automobiles. Newman and Schulke are not strangers in this locality, having spent more than a year in Yolo County in other affairs. They desire to advise their friends that they will conduct the business purchased from Carroll in the manner in which it was conducted during the past two years. Carroll has been offered more inducements to devote his time to other affairs at which he can make better returns. Carroll is a steeplejack who has traveled around the state for many years and scarcely a spire exists that has not been visited by him in one capacity or another.

Mrs. L. Harris, who pretends to be a breeder of fancy chickens, advised the Independent yesterday that within the past ten days one of her turkelettes laid six double-yolk eggs, a record unsurpassed by any fowl of that kind so far known in the state. Mrs. Harris takes a pleasure in breeding and raising table fowl but never intended to break the record in egg-laying contests. The record above has anything beat so far published in the state of California. The turkelette differs from the turken in that the cross is made between a rooster and a turkey rather than between a turkey and a hen.

Thieves have been active during the past two weeks in the West Sacramento Auto Camp purloining what they may get their hands on and entering cabins and tents while owners are absent. Pearson Brothers have been greatly annoyed by the reports coming to them from the campers and are keeping an active lookout at night time for any stray hoboes who may be found around the camp. Deputy Sheriff Powers, who acts as nightwatchman, will not hesitate to take a shot at any individual who may be found around the West Sacramento Auto Camp and has orders to make arrests on finding persons in the camp not entitled to be there after sunset.

Suit has been commenced by A. F. Turner of West Sacramento against Jose Ramos for $30.50, claimed by Turner to be premium on an insurance policy which has not yet expired. Ramos claims that the premium has been paid and the case is now before Judge Barry in the local court for adjudication. Further proofs of payment have been asked by Judge Barry and the case will be settled early next week.

Suit has been commenced by Tom Miller against Louis Caffero for $257, together with interest and costs, which Miller claims Caffero owes him for working as watchman during several months at the Bluebird Inn. A. H. McCurdy, a Sacramento attorney, is acting as legal counsel for Miller, but so far Caffero has not been represented in court.

The charge of battery made against Tom Dupzyk last week by T. Morelli was dismissed last Monday by Judge Barry because Morelli refused to prosecute. Large Fuel Corporation, California Petroleum Co., Will Locate Great Plant In Washington

Monday last a 20,000 gallon tank was unloaded from the Southern Pacific spur at Fifth and Harriett streets for the California Petroleum Corporation of California, the first unit of a large plant that is to be loacted at this side of the river to supply the increasing trade for fuel in this section of California.

Clarence Herndon, with the Associated Oil Company at Front and Y streets in Sacramento during the last nine years, has been appointed district manager for this corporation in the northern part of the state and particularly for the Sacramento Valley.

The construction engineer, V. C. Douglas, is the moving power in the locating of the plant in Washington and it is under his direction that the plant, now being placed, is located here.

Temporarily the property owned by Fraser & Doyle will be used by the California Petroleum Corporation as a base to distribute its supplies but Herndon advises the Independent that later on a permanent location will be secured from several sites that have already been offered for the plant.

It is reported to the Independent, also, that the California Petroleum Corporation has at the present time 661 producing oil wells and already it has three refineries on the coast.

Lately the California Petroleum Corporation took over the Ventura Oil Company of the State at a cost of $4,000,000, also the Mohawk Oil Company of California at a cost of $3,000,000.

The total incorporation of the California Petroleum Corporation is $125,000,000.

Speaking to the Independent, Herndon said yesterday:

"We are greatly encouraged by the reception given us by the dealers, both wholesale and retail, at this side of the river and in Sacramento. Our corporation dealt in crude oils alone during fifteen years but lately entered the refining business and is now in the field to compete with the strongest corporations in California.

"The jurisdiction of this office extends from Galt on the south to the northern end of the Sacramento Valley and in order to supply this great territory it is the intention of the corporation to locate a permanent plant of great magnitude either at this side of the river or in Sacramento as the price is within reason."

Temporarily, the property owned by Fraser & Doyle will be used as a distributing base, but no fixtures placed by the corporation in that location will be settled in a permanent way.

SERVICE STATION HELD UP SUNDAY NIGHT BY TWO MEN

The Potola Service Station on the state highway leading to the new subway in West Sacramento was held up last Sunday night by two men, one of whom was armed, at about 11:45 P. M.

At that hour H. S. Rogers, owner of the service station, was in the place in the back room writing official letters for the partners. Being a warm evening, he left the door open, even though he had practically suspended business.

Suddenly two men entered the place, one about 45 years of age, carrying a gun, the other a youth about eighteen years.

Ordered to throw up his hands, he did so, when the robbers searched him and took from his pocket the receipts of the previous day which he had prepared for the bank next morning, amounting to $38.50. The receipts for that day (Sunday) were still in the cash register and were not touched.

After holding up Rogers, the two men cooly walked out of the station and took the road toward Westgate. Rogers did not follow because there was no possibility of his making an arrest or taking a shot at the intruders. In the light they could see him but he could not see them.

They escaped without intereference.

He reported the matter immediately to Sheriff Monroe at Woodland and Constable Wilson in Washington but no trace of the robbers has been found.

DINGWALL'S DEALS IN SHEEP BRING TROUBLE

Woodland, April 27.—Through the settlement here late yesterday of a suit brought by Samuel Harbinson of Harbinson Brothers, Inc., for the recovery of a band of sheep from E. Fraser, prominent Rio Vista rancher, another development in the case of M. N. "Scotty" Dingwall, young sheepherder, who has just started a state's prison term for sheep stealing, became known.

Harbinson learned that Fraser bought sheep in good faith from Dingwall, not realizing that the young Scotchman had robbed the Harbinson flocks. After Harbinson had filed a court action in Solano County as a matter of technical procedure, the attorneys of the two sheep men began conferences and helped their clients effect a satisfactory settlement out of court.

The agreement was reached late yesterday in the offices of Arthur B. Eddy of the local law firm of Armfield and Eddy. Fraser is to return 151 head of sheep which he bought from Dingwall, paying the "Scotch Sheik" $2300. The Rio Vista man is out that sum of money by reason of the fraud committed by Dingwall.

Harbinson did not learn until after Dingwall's arrest by Sheriff J. W. Monroe a month ago that the young herdsman had robbed his flocks. The complaint brought against Fraser states that the sheep were stolen on or about December 20, 1925.

Dingwall's statements to Sheriff Monroe after his arrest gave Harbinson the first inkling of the thieveries. The herdsman is said to have later denied stealing any of the Harbinson sheep, but Fraser told Harbinson that he had purchased 190 sheep from Dingwall and by the means of twenty-four different ear marks and brands 151 sheep in the Fraser corrals were identified as Harbinson's. The latter made demand for the sheep last April 18th.

Several lambs came along after Fraser took possession of the sheep, adding considerable value to the

FISHERMEN'S STRIKE WILL MAKE NO SCARCITY IN SACRAMENTO

At a meeting of the striking fishermen on the Sacramento River held in Pittsburg last Tuesday night it was decided that Sacramento wholesalers, principally Meredith & Co., would not be handicapped in supplying the market with fish.

It was also decided at that meeting that the striking fishermen would not supply the San Francisco market because San Francisco wholesalers refused to deal fairly with the fishermen.

As explained to the Independent, it seems that the San Francisco wholesalers will only take 500 pounds of shad every day from the fishermen, for which they allow 1 cent per pound, but for female shad containing shad roe, they allow 5 cents per pound.

The fishermen cannot throw back into the stream buck shad for in so doing they are liable for prosecution.

The demands of the fishermen is that the wholesalers take at least 500 pounds of any kind of shad taken out of the stream or their entire catch.

The fishermen also want the San Francisco wholesalers to accept all salmon taken in the river at 12½ cents per pound until May 15th and subsequently all salmon taken according to the supply.

Bass is now being accepted by the San Francisco dealers at 10 cents per pound from the fishermen, which price the fishermen are satisfied to accept.

The principal trouble centers on the price of shad which is plentiful in the river at this season of the year.

The fishermen claim that it costs them $1000 for the necessary gear to equip themselves to fish and if they sell shad at 1 cent per pound, giving the wholesalers a choice, they cannot make a living.

Another meeting will be held next Friday night at Pittsburg.

PETTY INTERFERENCE WITH LIBERTY IRRITATES PEOPLE

Twenty thousand motorists were waved to the curb in California by state traffic officers during the month of March and told to explain why they were traveling too fast or otherwise breaking the motor vehicle laws. The explanations given by 5,315 of these failed to convince the officers and they were placed under arrest.

The statistics, which were made public today by Will H. Marsh, chief of the division of motor vehicles, also show that these roadside conversations resulted in fines totaling $29,476.50 for the month. The officers were also responsible for the collection of $13,540.95 in delinquent fees from motorists who had forgotten to pay.

A drive coducted in San Francisco during the month by a division inspector and four local traffic men resulted in the discovery that 3,000 chauffeurs were operating in that city without a license. They paid $2 each for the privilege of remaining at work. The traffic officers rode 340,453 miles during the month.

The largest number of motorists stopped, 1942, is credited to the Imperial County squad, while Kern County men were second with 1698. Alameda County officers led in arrests with 897. San Diego County judges showed the least disposition toward leniency, the total fines there being $3,749.

GETTIN' RICH IN SCOTLAND

London, April 8.—An estimate of the United Kingdom Alliance is that bootleg whisky shipped indirectly to the United States, last year approximated 1,500,000 proof gallons for which the Scottish distillers received £2,000,000 (about $10,000,000).

prisonment in the Yolo County jail but the former foreman for Moore and Peterson would not involve others in his crimes. He denied that there were any confederates, but sheep men claim that he could not have operated so successfully alone.

Dingwall is 29 years old. His term in San Quentin has not been fixed by the prison board. He will be given from 1 to 14 years. He pleaded guilty here two weeks ago to stealing 209 sheep from George Borchers.

ADELE MARTY MAY BE CANDIDATE FOR SCHOOL SUPERINTENDENT

Woodland, April 29.—Now that Miss Harriett S. Lee has announced her intention of not seeking re-election for the office of county superintendent of schools, announcements of candidates are in order. In this behalf the first to indicate intention of seeking the position at the coming primaries is Miss Adele R. Marty, teacher of the Monument school located at Elkhorn where Miss Marty resides. The prospective candidate is a young woman with many friends and of a charming personality.

Miss Marty has been offered quite a lucrative position with the schools at Santa Barbara for the coming term, but hesitates in making any decision in contemplation of seeking an office to which she hoped to some day aspire at the opportune time.

SEE WHAT JACKASS IS DOING

Residents of Guinda were amazed Saturday to see two deer walking through the streets. The pair was a spike buck and a doe, which had evidently strayed down from the mountains to graze on the creek. The deer came to town through a field belonging to E. E. Boek, going into another belonging to Wirt Pierce. When last seen they were headed down a lane back of the Southern Pacific depot in Guinda, after traversing the main street.

Watercolor exhibit adorns library in April

By Betty Fairbairn Sokolich
Exhibition Chair
East Yolo Friends of the Library

The colorful exhibit of watercolors by Delores O'Neill Meldrum of the California Missions covers the wall of the meeting room at the Turner Library through the month of April, 1999. Meldrum has long had a fascination with the history and beauty of the missions and the influence of the missionaries on the California Indians and the development of the agriculture of the state. She has visited and painted all the missions in her colorful varied technique some with detail and others with a beauty of simplification of the forms. The limited wall space of the meeting room where the exhibit is hung necessitated leaving three of the mission paintings out of the exhibit. If you have ever been curious about the differences in the architectural styles of the missions this is a good opportunity to compare the settings and styles of the missions. The large San Diego de Alcala founded in 1769 the first mission built, the white of the building is sparkling and the lofty bell tower with housing for five bells to call the faithful is impressive. A more austere building is the fourth one built in 1771 with its fortress like appearance. The lone light hanging above the door emphasizes the forbidding feeling project by the building.

San Buenaventura, 9th mission, 1782 is painted in a frame of luscious fruit grown in the mission orchard. The blue decorated tile around the fountain is a direct influence of the Spanish and Mexican art design. Santa Barbara, the tenth mission built in 1786, has two bell towers and a beautiful relationship of the building forms. Located in the rolling hills around Santa Barbara, the mission projects peace and contemplation.

Meldrum has incorporated into her compositions of some of the paintings suggestions of the main agricultural activity of the missionaries. For instance, La Purisma Concepcion, eleventh one built in 1781 has a pastoral scene of grazing sheep and the mission garden is viewed through an archway decorated simply with a stylized painting of a vine following the contour of the arch. San Fernando Rey de Espana, seventeenth built in 1797 shows a well cared garden with calla lilies, olive trees and fountain. Peacocks proudly strutting around showing off their colorful plumage in the idyllic pastoral setting.

All the missions used a "carreta" or work wagon got the farm chores. Meldrum has painted a typical wagon in bright flowing watercolors silhouetted against the brilliantly colored vine covering the wall surrounding the mission. The song about the swallows returning to San Juan Capistrano, makes this mission more familiar to many. It was the ninth one and was built in 1776, an important year in USA history.

The painting of San Antonio de Padua, founded in 1771 is painted in washes of yellows, oranges, blues and greens with the roof top of the building echoing the shape of the mountain in the background. The white of the paper is left to represent the sparkling sky providing an accent for the soft colors. The second mission built 1770, San Carlos Borromeo de Carmelo is another familiar one. It has two bell towers and a beautiful, colorful and lush garden.

Also included in the exhibit is a chart of the symbols used by the priests to decorate the exterior and interiors of the missions and as a tool to educate the Californian Indians about Christianity. The challenge is to see how many you can find in the paintings. The symbols are:

Eye in a triangle = the Eye of God, all seeing; triangle = Trinity, God in three persons, father son, and spirit; dove = The Holy Spirit; shell = baptism and pilgrimage; lamb = Christ sacrificial victim for redemption; = wavy lines = river of life, baptism; grapes = fruitfulness, joy; cross = redemption.

The exhibit is sponsored by the East Yolo Friends of the Library and can be viewed during regular library hours.

Wildlife care, anyone?

April showers bring...baby birds! Have you ever wondered what to do with or whom to call about baby birds falling out of nests, squirrels that run amuck, or other injured or orphaned wildlife that find their way to your yard? Do you have close encounters with wildlife with whom you would prefer not to associate? On Saturday, May 1, at 3 p.m., at the Arthur F. Turner Branch of the Yolo County Library, volunteer wildlife rehabilitators from Sacramento Wildlife Care Association will give a presentation about these very issues and answer your questions. They will bring birds and a reptile that were not releasable to give you a personal view of what we so often see only from afar. You and your children will not want to miss this special event, sponsored by the East Yolo Friends of the Library.
